PERSIMMON

Astringent & Non-Astringent

Persimmons are ready for harvest in the late fall, early winter. Often, fruits will be hanging like ornaments on the tree after all the leaves have fallen for the winter.

Astringent fruits are best served jelly-like and overly ripe. Biting into an UNRIPE astringent fruit leaves the mouth dry. Astringency converts starches to sugars as it ripens, developing an exceptionally sweet flavor.

Leave your unripe astringents in a brown bag or counter top to allow for full ripeness. Its wait the wait!

Non-Astringent fruits are sweet even when picked unripe. These fruits have crispier skin and sweet flesh even when they not fully ripe.
